About Us

Founded in 2006, the main objective of the Medical Microbiologists and Immunologists Society is to contribute to the development of medical microbiology and immunology by uniting the efforts of Azerbaijani scientists and specialists in this field.

Through its activities, the Society is helping to raise awareness about infectious diseases and promotes collaborative research to eradicate these public health concerns.

The Society is supported by its expert members as well as the Azerbaijan Medical University and other public health organizations.

Our Activities

To achieve above mentioned objective our Society is conducting following activities:

- Contributes to the unification of theoretical, experimental and clinical research by Azerbaijani scientists
- Assists members in their scientific work, professional development, discussion of proposals and their applications
- Strengthens relationships with international scientific organizations, prominent scientists and promotes joint research activities
- Promotes the application of international scientific achievements and best practices in Azerbaijan
- Helps improve diagnostic methods and participates in the establishment of research laboratories
- Provides scientific and pedagogical assistance in teaching science of microbiology and immunology in graduate and vocational schools
- Helps to improve medical and academic terminology in the field of microbiology and immunology
