About CSID – CMA

- Croatian Society for infectious Diseases (founded in 1959), professional society affiliated in the Croatian Medical Association (founded in 1874)
- Encompasses infectious diseases physicians, clinical microbiologists, epidemiologist, general practitioners, paediatricians, veterinarians and others healthcare professionals
- International cooperation: European Society of Clinical Microbiology and Infectious Diseases (ESCMID), European Union of Medical Specialists (UEMS)
- President: Bruno Barbić, MD, PhD, Professor of infectious diseases, University of Zagreb School of medicine

The aims:

- Advance of the physicians’ education in infectious diseases in Croatia and region
- Research promotion in all aspects of infectious diseases
- Advocation for sound and evidence-based public health policy in matters related to infectious diseases

CSID – CMA sections:

- Section for respiratory infections
- Section for viral hepatitis
- Section for infectious diseases’ immunology
- Section for travel and tropical medicine
- Section for zoonosis
- Young physicians’ section
- Section for healthcare-associated infections

CROCMID 2016, Poreč, Croatia, October 20/23, 2016

11th Congress of the Croatian Society for Clinical Microbiology of the Croatian Medical Association, 8th Congress of the Croatian Society for Infectious Diseases of the Croatia Medical Association

Highlights

- ESCMID Workshop - Antimicrobial stewardship
- 5 Plenary lectures
- 2 Meet the expert sessions
- 19 Sections
- 91 Oral presentations
- 59 Posters
- 13 Sponsored symposiums
- ECDC - PRE workshop
- Number of registered participants 284
- 10 ESCMID grants for young doctors

Upcoming events in 2017:

Meeting of the Croatian Society for Infectious Diseases of the Croatian Medical Association “The future of infectious disease profession in Croatia”, Čakovec, Zrinski/Scheier Hall, June 2-3, 2017